Professor J. J. Mackenzie,

Pathological Building.

Dear Professor Mackenzie:

I should like very much to be able to give you a grant for your trip to St. Louis, but this year I have refused everything except for people who are going on definite university business. There have been several other professors who have asked for grants for attending meetings that seemed equally important to their departments, but I have had to refuse them all. I hope that you will look upon my decision as being based upon a rule any departure from which we should find would involve me in serious difficulties.

Yours sincerely,

President.
